Founded in the late 1990's, MDB Industries has carved a niche for itself using creativity and experience, along with advanced engineering technology and CNC (Computer Numerical Control) manufacturing, to fashion true, custom solutions for their customers' millwork needs. Whether a client wants a complete house trim package, exotic paneling, a coffered ceiling, an entire specialty room such as a wine cellar or home theater, flooring, or a custom entry door, MDB can create or replicate it. They can even help a client process their own trees with their sawing and kiln drying capabilities, perfect to recycle the fallen tree in the yard, or incorporate back into the home the timber removed from a new-build site clearing.

MDB's artistic capabilities are used in their other specialties as well, including restoration work. Their ability to recreate any portion of a trim or architectural component (such as handrails and spindles) starts by scanning the original to create a digital model, then reproducing it to within .01 of an inch. This is invaluable to those renovating a historic home with damaged or missing trim, those adding on and wishing to maintain integrity between old and new, or those who have a prototype of something they like and won't settle for anything less.

Owner Carlton Wilson sees entrance doors as an opportunity for homeowners to express their tastes in a creative and functional manner and is excited to be adding both interior and exterior doors to MDB's services. "It's a rare detail in homes," he says.

"Why not add an interesting design feature to these manufactured homes? Or add the finishing touch to the dream house you've worked hard to build? We all see fantastic homes with grand, towering entranceways, with a boring slab of a front door that no one uses—it's not inviting. Whether it's a replacement or brand-new, a custom designed doorway is a relatively easy enhancement to make, and adds so much to your home."

MDB Industries helps their clients find the perfect solution for all their architectural millwork needs, whether they're home builders, renovation and restoration experts, or homeowners building new, adding on, or restoring a historic or treasured home. Logon to www.mdbindustries.com to see more inspiring examples of their work and call to discuss your plans and ideas.
